THE ORDINANCE OF 1787.—The sixth article | turned to their homes on Saturday. of this document, which contains the restriction on slavery and the proviso for the return of fugitive slaves escaping into the Northwest Territory has figured so prominently in the subsequent political discussions which have been carried on in the name of the Ordinance, that the National Inthe provisions of the celebrated measure have that he regarded the regulations of the ordinance of 1787, in relation to the formation of new States, their temporary government, and the conditions of their admission into the Confederacy, as made "without the least color of constitutional authority" under the clif Articles of Confederacy heads that he did not mean to throw censure on tinnatal Congress, whose members, he was sensible, could not have done otherwise compelled as an object of the danger, as his cost bore the marks of several below themselves to intend the rescaped, not, however, without and by the necessities of the case," "to overleap their constitutional limits." Accordingly he finds in this fact "an alarming proof of the danger resulting from a Government which does not possess regular powers commensurate to its objects," and, as he is comparing in this respect. and, as he is comparing in this respect the relative merits of the old Articles of Confederation with those of the new Constitution, considered with special reference to the administration of the Western Terri tory, it is obvious, that, by necessary implication, his argument proceeds on the supposition that under the latter instrument the powers necessary for "the proper management" of that domain, and | feit and spurious bank note paper with intent to which the old Congress was constrained to usurp, could be exercised without the danger of "dissolution on the one hand or "usurpation" on the other; for such, he adds, was "the dreadful di- to kill. A PENNSYLVANIA OFFICER DROWNED .- We learn with regret from Col. S. D. Bruce, in command at Bowling Green, that First Lieut. David

H. Nissley, of the Ninth Pennsylvania Lochiel

Cavalry, was drowned near that place while bathing in Barren river, on Saturday last. His body was recovered the next morning, and has been forwarded to his Pennsylvania home, Mount Joy.

Lieut. Nissley was a most excellent and exemplary young man, and an efficient and worthy period, liberal tributes to the Federal Treasury." That Mr. Madison supposed the Congress competent under the new charter to exercise constitutionally the powers "usurped" under the old Confederation, is plain from the prospect he indulges, in this same number of the Federalist, when he expresses the belief that the remaining States possessing unoccupied lands "would not persist in withholding similar proofs of equity | the 30th ult., en route for Washington City. Mr. and generosity" with those already furnished Rives has resided for some years in the State of by New York, Virginia, and other States in the Illinois, and when the war broke out he became surrenders they had made to the common domain of the Union. It is impossible to conceive that he could have contemplated with satisfaction any such additional cessions of territory unless he had supposed Congress to be endowed, under the new instrument, with powers equal to those "usurped" under the old, as being found necessary, and for whose assumption provision was made, and on this theory rightfully made, by the first clause of the sixth article of the Constitution, which declares that "all debts contracted and engagements entered into before the adoption of the Constitution shall be as valid against the United States under the Constitution as under the Confederation." That is, according to the logic of Mr. Madisor, the provisions of the ordinance of 1787, though made "without the least color of officer. His sad and sudden death is much reconstitutional authority" under the Articles of gretted by all his brother efficers. Confederation, were not incompatible with the

It is known, we presume, to many of our readers, that, soon after Tennesses ongaged in the existing war, we became connected with the editorial department of the Nashville Republican Banner, in which capacity we sustained the Scuthern revolution until the recent occupation of the State by the Federal Government. From a stand point which has enabled us to calmly survey the field, we have watched the progress of the present revolution from its inception till this good hour, and it is in view of observations made while an active participant, in connection with events recent and overwhelming, that we take the position we assume to day. We are impressed, this morning, more deeply than ever, with the conviction we entertained prior to the rebellion of Tennessee. Indeed, we look upon what we have seen and what we have learned as events have opened up this great struggle, as a complete vindication of that ruth of that conviction. And now, in view of it all, we regard it as a duty, alike to ourself and to the generation in

The Great Remedy of the Age The Great Remedy of the Age

Has never been known to fail in the cure of Cholera
I have opened an Office, 508 Green street, nearly opposite the Postoffice, for the sale of this veliable medicine. It has been tested in finudreds of instances and nover known to fail when the disease was taken in time and the medicine properly given.

The remedy will cost only about 10 cts. to each Hog, and can be sent to any part of the United States. This medfeline is a liquid and is put up only in quart and half gallon bottles. The half gallon bottle is worth ten dollars, and contains medicine enough for 100 hogs. The quart botle is worth five dollars, and contains medicine for 50logs—each bottle having on its label all the necessary directions for using. All orders, accompanied by cash, promptly attended to. Any person wishing to purchase
State or County rights for the sale of this valuable med

WEDNESDAY, JULY 9, 1862.

A SECRET TREASONABLE ORGANIZATION .-At a late Union gathering in Indianapolis, Governor Morton, the Chief Executive officer of Indiana, stated that he had received reliable and certain information as to the existence of a treasonable organization in that State, its ing to resist the collection of the war tax, discourage enlistments, &c. The Indianapolis cast upon him. Journal professes to have discovered the character of the order, and makes this statemen in regard to it:

in regard to it:

The order in question is the "Knights of the Golden Circle," but has changed its name twice in the last year, to avoid exposure and public odium, and now styles itself the order of the "S. P. B's," or the "Saif-Protecting Brothers." Should the members of the order be called as witnesses in a court of justice, they are required to deny its existence, under penalty of death.

The oath taken by the members of this order is to resist the prosecution of the war in every way, to refuse to pay war taxes, to discourage enlistto resist the prosecution of the war in every way, to refuse to pay war taxes, to discourage enlistments and prevent drafts of soldiers, and to resist and overthrow the administration of Mr. Lincoln. We are further advised that the members of this order are procuring arms and preparing to carry their purposes by force if need be, not only in this State, but through the whole Northwest. They claim to have ten thousand members in Indiana, as many in Ohio, and more in Illinois.

We recently had an interview with a courter

We recently had an interview with a couple of gentlemen of the highest political, social, and moral standing in Indiana, who assured us that respectable men, representing them. selves as members of the order, had secretly and cautiously come before them and made the same statement substantially as that given above in regard to its principles and designsstated that the obligation assumed by memhers at initiation was to resist in all practicable ways the collection of war-taxes, to dissuch order or organization on penalty of death; and they added that they understood there were several degrees of the order, though they knew only what pertained to the first.

The evidence, then, is very strong, if not absolutely conclusive, that the organization in question has an existence throughout our sister State, and extends in all probability to othe States. Its designs, if correctly stated, are treason-secret, lurking, skulking, cowardly. atrocious treason. The bare fact that a politiwar, is secret and oath-bound, is prima facie evidence, and exceedingly strong evidence, of | will begin to cut its wisdom-teeth. its thoroughly treasonable character. A secret political society in a season of war involve with almost absolute certainty a conspiracy against the life of the country. We beg all our Indiana friends, all the good citizens ef that State, who, under whatever politica designation, have supported and are now supporting the Union, the Constitution, and the laws, to look carefully and with deepest scrutiny around them and set the seal of their indignation and wrath upon any effort, covert or open, to paralyze or weaken the arm of the Government in this terrible struggle for national existence. If any man, high or low, be detected in the effort, let him be accursed.

We lately copied some remarks of the Memphis correspondent of the Cincinnat Commercial in regard to M. C. Gallaway, late Postmaster at Memphis, and added a paragraph of our own. The Avalanche of the 2d inst. makes this reply:

Col. Galiaway is no thief; but a man of stern, sterling industry; held by all who personally knew him, as an nonorable and scrupulously just man. If early, ardent, and continued devotion to the South constitutes treason, he is a traitor. We undertake to affirm that he never, at any period this lite performed a mean or an illiperator. of his life, performed a mean or an illiberal act for money; he is no sordid, selfish, or mercenary man. He is bold and brave, generous and just. He is a man of head and heart. He has friends a destroyer of good looks, such a blighter of

Col. Gallaway handed over to the Confederate Government what moneys and valuables he held belonging to the Federal Government. He bought no lot and built no house with the public funds in his possession at the period at which the Government was broken up; but in common with all officials in public stations at the South the funds held by each respectively were handed over to the Confederate Government. Officials had no option left them; the Government as well as the public sentiment of the entire South demanded it. All had to yield to this demand.

The house and lot referred to belongs to Mrs. Gallaway, and not Col. Gallaway. It is her sole and separate estate, inherited from her ancestors; neither subject to his use, nor in any manner liable for his debts, independent of her will and pleasure. The laws of the land protect her in the possession, the use, and the disposition of it. As correct information, at home and abroad, we have been induced to copy the above articles and to make such as the state of the content of the content of the subject to the state of the content of the such as the content of the such as the content of the such as the content of the content of the such as the content of the such as the content of the conten Col. Gallaway handed over to the Confederat been induced to copy the above articles and to make such statements, both as to the character of Col. Gallaway and the facts in the premises, which we know to be true.

As an act of naked and simple justice, we beg the Louisville Journal and Cincinnati Commercial to copy our notice of the matter. It is due to truth and justice—hence we ask it of honorable gentlemen and true journalism, assured of its being cheerfully granted by both of them.

Much as we abhor Mr. Gallaway's treason we would on no account do him the least injustice. The Avalanche says that he "handed over to the Confederate Government what moneys and valuables he held belonging to the Federal Government." Well, if he handed what "belonged" to one Government, whose sworn officer he was, over to another and a hostile Government, he committed theft or robbery either voluntarily or by compulsion. But certainly we cannot be mistaken in our belief, founded to be sure on hearsay, that he made in it by the small trader." and all his rebel friends in Memphis were vehement advocates not only of the payment of the rebel Government, but of the payment of it, as our soldiers are doing for the Missisall the claims of private citizens of the United sippi opposite Vicksburg. General Benham, who was ordered to field. Washington under arrest after his failure to capture the battery at Secessionville, has been perhaps neuter, seem to spend a considerable restored to his command. The evacuation of portion of their time in writing us abusive James Island by General Hunter shows that anonymous letters. Perhaps they flatter themit was impossible to occupy it without possess- selves that they annoy us. If they knew that ing that battery, and General Benham's effort | we consider it quite as much as we can do, to storm it was not, therefore, an unnecessary and often a great deal more, to read the letand rash movement, but one which was direct- ters that come to us with names to them, ed by the urgent necessity of his situation. possibly they wouldn't make such asses o The position of the battery is said to be on the themselves-wouldn't expend time, paper, neck of a peninsula which can be commanded temper, brain-cudgelling, and postage-stamps, by our gunboats firing across the land, and, for nothing. We wonder who can be silly our forces to advance with safety. Injustice nameless letter after finding that it is intended seems to have been rendered to Gen. Whilst the cotton of all Jeff Davis's old neighbors in Mississippi was burned by themselves, Jeff's remained untouched. The peoole waxed indignant, and Jeff's attention was called to the matter. Jeff very innocently replied that he really supposed that it was the business of the Confederate troops to burn the cotton instead of every man's burning his

Now in this matter Jeff lied. He knew that all the owners of cotton in the rebel Confederacy had been ordered by the government that he is at the head of to burn their own cotton. If the cotton was to be burned at all, why should rebel troops have been put to the trouble of ransacking all the plantations and farms of the South instead of every good rebel citizen's making his own bonfires But Jeff's cotton was burned.

understand McClellan's tactics any better than did our own wiseacres, who called his masterly change of position a retreat. The Memphis Appeal, which is nomadic, as the Louisville Courier used to be, and is now published at Grenada, Miss., had a despatch from Richmond on the 29th ult., which said McClellan courage enlistments, to prevent drafts, and, if was retreating toward the James river, where of supply were effectually cut off. The very reverse of this state of affairs was the truth, for McClellan pushed for the river to assure of embarking any portion of his command.

The rebels in Tennessee are said to have aptured fifty of Gen. Mitchell's scouts and hung them on the spot. If this is true, let the victims be immediately avenged. Let us, according to the rule mentioned in Scripture, cal organization, order, or society, in time of take a tooth for a tooth. And let the tooth we take be an eye-tooth. Then perhaps treason

A great deal is now said a ainst Mr. Stanton, the Secretary of War, and a great deal in his favor. Iu our opinion, he is a man of unquestionable genius, talent, honesty, courage, and patriotism, and, if he has erred in anything, it has been in exercising over important military movements, a control for which he was not fitted by either military education Somebody says that the Southern Con-

deracy may now be bounded as follows: on the North by McClellan and Halleck; on the east by Burnside and Hunter; on the south by Fort Pickens and the Gulf Squadron; and on the west by General Butler, Commodore Farragut, and Captain Porter.

GENERAL GEORGE B. CRITTENDEN.-The Memphis Avalanche says the report that Gen. Crittenden has resigned his command in the rebel army and gone to Texas is a mistake. It states that he was court-martialled, and. after the court had made up a verdict, he was permitted to resign.

Any man, with as much pride of characte slimy toad in his bosom, next to the skin, than the consciousness of having written disrespectful anonymous letter.

An army correspondent of the New York Tribune, himself an abolitionist, wrote as follows from the midst of Gen. McClellan recent splendid movements, while they were a vet incomplete:

We march now through the White Oak Swamp, to change, in twelve hours' time, the base of a great army—doomed where it was, and having now but little grace of delay accorded to it by ar ctive and brave enemy, numerous enough to eircle us at any point and to outnumber us at all the movement is bold, soldier-like, and brillian but eminently hazardous. It is made by the ligh of the burning of every one of the bridges whic we have so painfully thrown over the Chaka hominy, and within hearing of the destruction y our own hands, of the railroad which gave us upplies and was to secure us retreat. The move nent will probably be successful, though its trai will be bloody. The world will regard it as a masterly stroke of genius. The army will so re-gard it, and will feel for its commander the admiration and gratitude that saviors of men ever enkindle in loyal hearts. But the brilliancy of this movement will not for an instant dazzle the eyes of the wronged and wrathful men of the army of the Potomsc, nor will it dazzle the sight of the angry prople so as for a moment to obscure their perception of the crime against the nation, which has made this change of base and front imperiously necessary. This crime is the refusal to reinforce McClellan. soldiers, and politicians have debated—of this General's fitness to command. The York and James river Peninsula was not the place for that courage enlistments, to prevent draits, and, it called as witnesses in a court of justice, to deny all knowledge of the existence of any any criticism of Gen. McClellan's campaign or this Peninsula or on the Potomac. I have blows, but not a word, for the untimely casuist, in or out of administrative office, who, under the roar uninterrupted supplies and has never dreamed and shell, meets the demand for aid to this army with a chronological measure of delays at Fort Monroe, at Yorktown, at Williamsburg, at Seven l don't care whether there were delays of the Quartermaster General's delays, or the delay d American army to demand help from the nd from their feet by the fire of rebel brigades, bry out of their wounds and death for help; when the choicest of New England and Michigan and Pennsylvania troops, outnumbered in front and on both flanks by whole divisions of the enemy, beg for reinforcements, I say that the blackest crime that Power can commit is to stalk upon the field of peril and say: "Soldiers, I have no faith in your commander! Let your martyrdem proceed!" And so says this army of the Potomac. And it registers to night yows of venceance as it. registers to-night vows of vengeance as i marches in the dark from a position which thei diminished numbers disabled them from holding but which is consecrated to them forever by thei afferings, their labors, and their wrongs. The coliticians and statesmen who left us here to be outnumbered and cut off from our supplies and the possibility of retreat are doomed men.

and further, that since then she has been undergoing repairs rendered necessary by bringing her through the the canal.

Given under my hand the day above written.

THO. SWORDS,

THE RIGHT MAN IN THE RIGHT PLACE -- We learn that during the excitement at Baltimore, over the news of the hard fighting by the army of the Potomac, a prominent secessionist of Balwas so badly whipped by the rebels that he fled for refuge on board of one of the gunboats, and from the gunboat sent to General Lee to know on what terms the loyal army could be permitted to apitulate. The mendacious author of this rebel lie, after writing it down, went from one reading room in Baltimore to another, and read out this statement. As soon as the facts came to General Wool, he had the miscreant arrested and sent to Fort McHenry. There he should remain until he learns to behave himself properly, and we suppose that time would be equivalent to a sentence of imprisonment for of life. Without designing, in any way, or to any extent, to disparage the claims of other candidates that have been presented through our columns, we deem it a duty to ourselves and an act of justice to our young friend Thomas A. Morgan to say that few can present as high qualifications r the office of Marshal of the Louisville Chancory Court as he does. Modest and unassuming in manner and character, unflinchingly loyal, honestly and undoubtedly true to his Government and country, uncorruptible in integrity, and of ample experience, no one could fairly or properly question that the duties of the office would be faithfully discharged by him. From such a man it, would be unkind to withhold this tribute, and we cheerfully pay it. HENRY'S PATENT REPEATING RIFLE.-Mr. W. C. Stanton, the agent for the manufacturers, advertises the good qualities of this new and powerful weapon, and we can endorse all he says of its performance from our actual observation. We in search of the assassins. particularly commend it to army uses as the most effective arm for picket and vidette duty and to all our citizens in secluded places as a protection against guerilla attacks and robberies. A man armed with one of these rifles can load and discharge one shot every second, so that he is equal to a company every minute, a regiment every ten minutes, a brigade every half hour, and a division every hour. In the hands of tharp-shooters it will prove a terrible engine of destruction. We advise all curious in the construction of rifles to examine this glorious improvement.

A despatch received late last evening from Adjutant-General Finnell, states that Kentucky will be called upon for five new regiments of infantry, and the proclamation will be issued today. We shall have but little occasion to urge the loyal people of the State to give active aid to this work, for there is spirit up throughout the Commonwealth which says this rebellion must and shall be crushed with all possible speed,

We are indebted to Mesers. Stivers & Brother, fruit dealers, on Fifth, between Market and Jefferson, for some splendid peaches, the first we have yet seen of this year's growth. BOMBARDMENT OF VICKSBURG. Things up Yazoo River—Burning of three Gunboats—Blockade of the Yazoo—The Arkansas—Guerillas at Trenton, Arkansas. An extra from the Memphis Union Appeal, issued last Thursday, says the ram Monarch arrived from Vicksburg that day and brings the following startling news, detailed by Capt. Geo. E. Curry, an eye-witness of the whole on Commodore Porter's flag ship Victoria, at Vicksburg:

On Thursday previous the bombardment of Vicksburg was commenced by Commodore Perter's mortar fleet at about light in the morning. The shells were directed against the upper fort below the town, which mounted eight guns. The bombardment continued on that fort-all day with-bombardment continued on that fort-all day without result.

On Friday morning the firing was opened; in the afternoon Porter signalized to shell the town itself, which was done with deliberation and great accuracy. The effect of the shell could not be well discerned from the Octorora, then anchored in the stream about two miles below the town.
The shells could all be seen to burst, but the effect of the bursting was hidden by the buildings in front. This continued till about four, when the fleet was signalled to cease firing, which it did.
The batteries on shore replied very lightly and at long and irregular intervals, firing very inaccu-

It appears that an order came from Com. Farragut, whose fleet was then five miles below the town in the bend, to again shell the town at 4 o'clock next morning (Saturday), when a portion of his fleet would run past the rebel batteries. This order was obeyed, and again the sky was shaken by the bursting of bombs and the explosion of morlars. At about 5 o'clock that morning, see the sun was shiping farragul's flaet came no general to the Tribane.]

[Special to the Tribane.] as the sun was shining, Farragut's fleet came up, and eight of them passed the batteries, pouring broadsides into the town and batteries. These eight vessels consisted of three men-of-war, two sloops of-war, and three gunboats. During this dariog passage the rebel batteries poured an iron hall on the fleet, scarcely damaging any of the fleet and disabling none.

The bed of the Mississippi being thus turned, Vicksburg becomes an inland city forevermore. Seven hundred incendiary shells have been sent for to New Orleans with which to reduce the remains of Vicksburg to a hes, and the canal is fast progressing to completion.

Captain Curry tells us that all along the shore coming up, the fall of Richmond is confidently asserted by the people; and for the cutting of the telegraph wires, the particulars would undoubtedly have reached Memphis ere this.

Beyond the raft some sixty miles, the carpenter alluded to, and others report twenty of the finest steamboats of the South, and Shirley's gunboat, the Arkansas, to protect which the raft had been constructed and the battery planted.

We stood like a rock opposed to the insane secession movement; we showed what it must inevitably produce, its causelessness, it impracticability, and its senselessness. Carried away by the flood its authors had managed to create, we did not abandon our post or forsake the cause of the people; we still went with them, pointing out from day to day the utter incapacity, corruption, and selfishness of their leaders, until at last the riddle was read by the most unbelieving here when our city had fallen, and it was lost.

we are ultra democratic in many of our opinions, but revolutionary under a Republican Government, never. We have identified ourselves with the cause of the people even when no binding sanction had ever been given by them to the policy pursued, believing in our inmost heart that the native common sense of this country would finally assert its supremacy, and restore things to their accustomed profitable and tranquil channels. As it is, we have nothing to say to, or of, those who still cling to the belief that this abominable domestic war will lead to a newer or better or domestic war will lead to a newer or better or rouder future for the South. If other and severer efflictions than any yet experienced by this population be in store for them, we shall be comparatively happy in the consciousness that the reproach attaches not to us or our endeavors. We have honestly labored to avert them, and upon others let the responsibility of our failure fall.

Mr. Ten Eyek could see no necessity for the passage of the bill at all. It would only interfere with the rights of States and recognize the occurrence of secession.

A NEW RELIGIOUS MOVEMENT. - The English ournals are discussing a movement which origi-nated, we believe, in a letter to one of the daily newspapers of London to abolish sermons, or, more strictly, to make it understood that the conregation assembles on Sunday for singing and rayer only, and that, this part of the services ompleted, there shall be a pause, during which hose who do not wish to hear the sermon may those who do not wish to hear the sermon may retire. This preposition is meeting with much attention and applause, and that in the most respectable of the English weekly journals.

They complain that the Episcopal Liturgy is itself long enough; and that a sermon of an hour's duration superadded to this is more than week and exhausted human nature can bear. They aid that at present the dread of the sermon keeps away from church many who would like to attend and join in the regular appointed worship of God, "There is a growing teeling amongst thinking men," says the Spectator, "that the sermon institution, as at present enforced, is altogether intolerable, that it is an intellectual burden which more or less saps (sic) the life of modern churches, and more perhaps than anything the introduces the dry-rot into worship.

In this, it is not intended to deny, as the Spectator remarks, the great influence of such preachers as Newman, Martineau, Maurice, Robertson, or Spurgeon; and, we may add, that of this class of ministers, men who strongly appeal to and affect the consciences of their hearers, and who have the power and living fire of an intense conviction wherewith they mould and influence the public, this country of free churches has produced a much greater number than Eagland.

What the kind of sermon is against which this protest is made in England, may be seen from the Spectator's description:

On motion of Mr. Grimes the bill supplementary to the act for the release of persons held to service or labor in the district of Columbia was taken up and passed.

On motion of Mr. Foster, the general pension bill was taken up and passed. The bill to provide provisional governments in certain places was taken up.

Mr. Ten Eyek could see no necessity for the passage of the bill at all. It would only interface with the right the righ apon the victors and in a battle which apon the victors and in a battle which, the rebels say, "exceeds any yet fought," whips them back, and they retreat "amid the vociferous cheers" of the national troops.

That a victory won under such circumstances should wring acknowledgment from the beaten foe is not to be wondered at. It is an achivement fit to be placed beside the most brilliant in military annals. How wenty of the retires' account.

The battle was renewed the next day with renewed success to the Union arms. Since then, as the telegraph informs us, there was no more fighting down to half past five on Thursday night. From this we judge that the divisions of Longstreet and Hall, so terribly cut to pieces in Monday's battle, and those of Jackson, Huger, and Magruder were their only remaining effective corps. These being, according to their own admission, more than half destroyed, it can easily be imagined why they did not renew the fight aftermagined why they did not renew the fight after

At 8 o'clock, therefore, the entire mortar fleet yomited a very rain of shells upon the devoted city, the round missiles seeming to be eager first to strike, and the last fired often outstripping its predecessor. This terrible fire continued about one hour, when an order was issued to cease firing.

There was a brisk engagement on Thursday in which our troops drove the enemy and captured a battery without losing a man. Gen. McCleilan has advanced his lines down to the Chickahominy and no fears are now entertained of flagk move-

According to the rebel journal, they drove our troops a mile and a half, when our men made a stand, and repelling the enemy with terrible slaughter Hill and Longstreet retreated "amid the vocifer-ous cheers of the Yankees." There are several points about this acknowledgdiers through such an ordeal of continuous bat-tle and retreat, in the face of such fearful odds, not only without demoralization, but to crown their standards with victory in the very hour of their deepest gloom.

The battle was renewed the next day with re-
